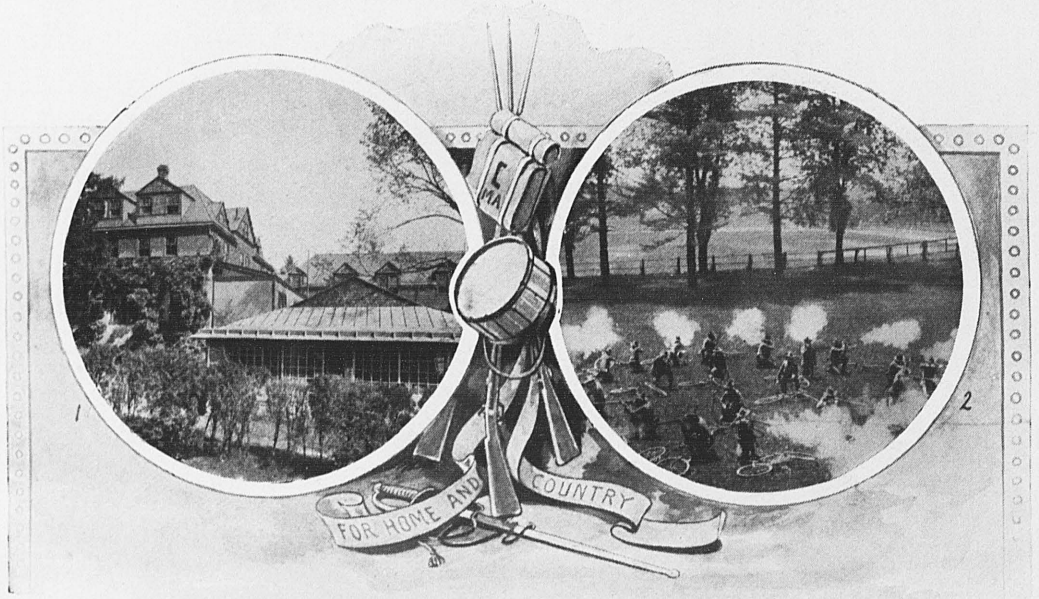
CHELTENHAM MILITARY ACADEMY

OGONTZ, PA.
(NEAR PHILADELPHIA)

"AN IDEAL SCHOOL IN AN IDEAL LOCATION"



CHELTENHAM MILITARY ACADEMY, on the summit of the Chelten Hills, near Philadelphia, has a location and environment rarely equaled for beauty and healthfulness. The School was founded twenty-eight years ago by the late Rev. Samuel Clements, D. D., and from its opening has had the best class of patronage and has met with unusual success in the training and education of young men and boys. A majority of its graduates enter leading colleges or scientific schools, and for the past six years its annual representation in such institutions has been equal to one-half the attendance of the school.

Among the features that have contributed to the success and popularity of the Academy, the following will at once commeud themselves to judicious parents: 1. The attendance is limited to seventy boarding pupils, in order that the classes may not be so large as to render attention to the individual pupil inconvenient or impossible. 2. Ten resident instructors (an average of one for every seven cadets), selected for their ability and experience and for their willingness to take an interest in the welfare and happiness of the pupils. 3. An honest endeavor to train and educate the whole boy rather than to merely prepare him to pass college entrance examinations. 4. The moral tone and influence of the institution.

The next school year begins Wednesday, September 26, 1900.

Parents seeking the right school for a boy are cordially invited to visit the Academy, or to communicate with the Principal. Rooms are assigned in order of application.

THE SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR----BLOCKADES AND COAST DEFENSE.

By SENERO GOMEZ NUNEZ, Captain of Artillery
[Translated from the Spanish.]

THE convention which abolished privateering for some States, and was sanctioned by others, namely, by Spain, the United States, and Mexico, who were not signatories to it, and only accepted articles 2, 3, and 4, says:

DECLARATION.

The plenipotentiaries who signed the treaty of Paris of March 30, 1856, assembled in conference.

Considering that,

Whereas the maritime law in time of war has for a long time been the subject of unpleasant controversies; and

Whereas the uncertainty of the law and duties relative to this matter gives rise, among neutrals and belligerents, to differences of opinion which may lead to serious difficulties and even conflicts; and

Whereas it would therefore be of advantage to establish a uniform doctrine on a point of such great importance; and

Whereas the plenipotentiaries assembled at the Congress of Paris could not better voice the intentions of their respective Governments than by trying to introduce into the international relations fixed principles on this point:

Now therefore the said plenipotentiaries, being thereunto duly authorized, have agreed to unite upon the means for attaining this object and have consequently resolved upon the following solemn declaration:

1. Privateering is and remains abolished.

2. The neutral flag covers enemy's goods, with the exception of contraband of war.

3. Neutral goods, with the exception of contraband of war, are not liable to capture under the enemy's flag.

4. Blockades, in order to be binding, must be effective; that is to say, maintained by a force sufficient really to prevent access to the coast of the enemy.

The Governments of the undersigned plenipotentiaries bind themselves to submit this declaration to the States which were not called upon to take part in the Congress of Paris, and to invite them to accede to the same.

Convinced that the above maxims can not help but be received with gratitude by the entire world, the undersigned plenipotentiaries trust that the efforts of their respective Governments in the direction indicated will meet with the most complete success.

This declaration is not and shall not be binding except as to the powers who have acceded to it or who will accede to it.

Done at Paris this 16th day of April, 1856.

GEORGE LOCKHART DARTE

George Lockhart Darte, present United States Consul at Patras, Greece, was formerly a member of Company D, 9th Regiment, N. G. P. During the war with Spain he was the United States Consul at Martinique, West Indies, and did highly creditable service for his Government while at that post. Consul Darte is a native of Wyoming Valley, a graduate of Pennsylvania University. He is an active member of the Sons of Veterans and also Sons of the Revolution. He is a resident of Kingston, Pennsylvania.

[We regret exceedingly that a typographical error occurred with the illustration of Mr. George Lockhart Darte in the last issue of the Journal (9th Regiment number). We herewith give the correct title and a reprint of Mr. Lockhart's biography, also wish to correct the initials of 1st Lieut. and Commissary Darte, which should read Frank G. Darte in place of Frank C., also the name of Mr. John N. Conyngham read Conynghan.]

It is therefore incontrovertible that Spain, with good international law on her side, could have decreed and practised privateering and derived from this means of commercial warfare, which the Yankees dreaded, every advantage consistent with the laws regulating it.

It would have been the more natural for Spain to adopt this means of warfare, as she had to do with a nation that had not acceded to the abolition of privateering, and which, for that reason, was also at liberty to practise it if it cared to. If the war had been between Spain and one of the powers which had declared themselves in favor of the abolition of privateering, it would have been quite a different thing.

The negative attitude toward the suppression of privateering, says Ortolan, assumed by a nation like the United States or like Spain, which possesses within itself all the necessary factors for making it now, as in the past, a naval power of the first order, deprives the principle of the declaration of Paris of that character of universality which is necessary to make it an absolute and uniform rule of international naval law founded on treaties. The principle of legitimate defence inherent in sovereignty implies necessarily, for a nation engaged in warfare, the right to call to arms all its citizens, and organize on land and on the sea a national militia; this being one of the rights which writers call primitive and absolute. The powers which agreed to limit or abandon the principle of privateering pursued chiefly the object of avoiding the repetition of the abuses that were attributed to it. But such excesses are not inherent in that mode of warfare. The abuses sometimes committed by privateers should be attributed, first of all, to the uncertainty of the rights and duties between neutrals and belligerents, to which uncertainty the second and third articles of the Paris declaration put an end as far as possible by laying down a uniform doctrine as to certain important points, which had already been observed by all nations, with the exception of Great Britain.

From whatever point of view we may look at this question, the mistake remains apparent: There is no possible excuse to justify our not having taken advantage of this means of warfare.

And on the other hand, what did we gain by not practising privateering? Was it not a covert method of privateering which the United States practised? In this connection we reproduce below what the Diario del Ejercito of Habana said during the blockade (June 10):

What is the United States method of warfare if not privateering? It is evident that they are practising it, because not only do they utilize, in their so-called blockade, the ships of the squadron proper as privateer to chase and capture our mercantile vessels, but they have also equipped numerous merchant vessels for war and are devoting them to that operation.

The merchant vessels which the United States has equipped for war are cruising in our waters, capturing our vessels, and taking them to its ports, there to be confiscated and the proceeds distributed, which is no more nor less than what privateers do. Why can we not do the same thing?

If it is a question of name under which the true purpose is covered up, let us resort to the same method. Whether they are called auxiliaries to the squadron or whether they are called privateers, the service rendered by these merchant vessels, equipped for war, is the same—they capture hostile vessels which they meet and paralyze commerce. It is arrant madness that Spain, from incomprehensible scruples, is not doing what the United States has been doing ever since the beginning of the naval campaign.

Here in Cuba we have valuable factors which we could use in such enterprises. There are numerous coast vessels which could be made to do service as auxiliaries to the fleet, if we do not wish to give them the more explicit name of privateers.

Besides, the blockade of the island of Cuba never was effective, and this must at times have been apparent and would have furnished facilities for taking in provisions.

The majority of writers on international law agree as to the fact that the blockade ceases the moment the ships forming the arc of vigilance and force disappear for any reason whatever from the waters of which they have taken possession.

There are some authors, like Hautefeuille, Negrin, Riquelme, Ortolan, Halleck, and Fauchille, who lay down the radical principle that, if the blockading ships are compelled to leave the blockaded port, either on account of stress of the weather, or injuries, or to rest their crews, or from lack of provisions, the blockade becomes ineffective, and in order to re-establish it new notification is required.

Others, like Bello, Perels, Bluntschli, Le Moine, Wheaton, Heffter, and Scott, do not admit that the blockade ceases when the blockading ships absent themselves because of fortuitous circumstances, and it is their opinion that the blockade is not to be considered interrupted on that account. This is the theory generally professed by English, and hence by American, writers as opposed to the other theory advocated by French authors, with better right and reason.

Our rear-admiral Manuel J. Mozo, in a recent and very excellent treatise on the Rights of People, which is used as text-book in the general school of the Armada, declares himself in favor of the French doctrine, because, he says, if the blockade consists in the conquest of the enemy's maritime territory, really and effectively maintained by the naval forces of the blockading party, it is clear and obvious that when such conquest ceases and the occupation is suspended the blockade also ceases and is suspended, and it is not necessary to enter upon an investigation as to the causes thereof, for, whether they are voluntary or involuntary, fortuitous or predetermined, the result remains the same. In either event they put an end to the dominion and jurisdiction which the blockading party had assumed and in virtue of which it prohibited access to the waters over which it had control and which ipso facto return to the jurisdiction and dominion of their original sovereign; and as the latter had permitted the entrance and sojourn of vessels of friendly nations in these waters, such vessels are at liberty to take advantage of the permission without being considered blockade breakers, for since there is no actual blockade it could hardly be broken.

Leaving aside these controversies of law, we must fix our attention on the point on which all authors agree, namely, that when the blockading squadron raises the blockade in order to engage in another operation of war, and especially when compelled to raise it in order to meet an attack of the hostile squadron, the blockade ceases, and in order to re-establish it the same formalities must be gone through as though it were a new blockade.

Now, then, the United States squadron was repeatedly compelled to abandon the blockade of Habana and several other ports of the island in order to look after other objectives which were not due to fortuitous causes, but, on the contrary, to the necessity of giving attention to the danger represented by our squadron. The fact may be pointed out that for three days the United States ships were absent from the waters of Habana, owing to the rumored approach of Cervera's squadron, during which time they left at the blockading station only a few inefficient vessels, some of them sailing craft, which could not really be considered as blockading ships, because they lacked the necessary attributes and power to prevent by force the ingress and egress of the harbor. The blockade of Habana must have ceased several times if the law had been properly laid before the nations of the civilized world.

The newspaper above referred to said under date of May 5:

"The blockade of Habana, Cienfuegos, Matanzas, and Cardenas is not effective, and the proof is that it was broken by several steamers, among them the Cosme Herrera, Aviles, Monserrat, and a number of sailing vessels which have entered or left said ports.

"In the second place, the naval forces of the United States for three days, from Sunday, May 1, to Wednesday, May 3, had to abandon almost entirely their blockading mission because they were needed elsewhere; which goes to show that they were insufficient to render the blockade of such harbors as Habana real, effective, and absolute, and this very day, while the Indiana, Iowa, Montgomery, New York, and Marblehead, that is to say, all the powerful hostile ships, are out of sight, anyone could run the blockade, for only the Wilmington and a few merchant vessels in the service of the squadron are left in front of Habana to blockade the harbor."

Having gone somewhat extensively into these questions, we will not close this chapter without setting forth our ideas as to the brutality and inhumanity of blockades when practiced as they were practiced in Cuba.

For reasons of universal morality the different nations have turned their attention to making wars more humane, by dictating general measures and agreeing to abstain from methods contrary to civilization and which work hardship to the innocent, the noncombatants, women, children, invalids—in a word, all those whose destruction leads to nothing and whom it is barbarous to injure.

To this end treaties and conventions have been drawn up which regulate the use of the instruments of war and put restrictions on destructive tendencies. An absolute and extensive blockade, under the circumstances under which Cuba had to sustain it, is not a means of war, but of oppression and death, which is contrary to every law of God and man, even though it is considered the most gentle method to reduce the enemy.

Perhaps it is because it has never before been attempted on a large scale and in an absolute manner that it has escaped the perspicacity of the "humanizers" of wars to place restrictions on the system of reducing to starvation not only the combatants, but an entire population—old men, women, children, and invalids, who, as a general rule, should not be subjected to the privations incident on battles—in these times when so much philanthropy and so much universal love is being preached.

CAPT. FRANCIS MARION BEAN
Commanding Battery "C"

MAJOR CHARLES F. LUMB

6th INFANTRY

Major Charles F. Lumb, the newly elected Junior Major of the 6th Infty., is perhaps the youngest field officer in the state service to-day. His original entry into the Guard was February 2d, 1893, and on May 21st, 1896 he was elected 2d Lieutenant of Company "C" State Fencibles Battalion.

His ability as a departmental officer was soon recognized by his battalion commander, and on December 3d, 1896, he was appointed Adjutant with the rank of 1st Lieutenant. During the Spanish-American War he served as 1st Lieutenant of Company "L" 6th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and at the subsequent reorganization of the Guard he was reappointed Adjutant of the State Fencibles Battalion.

The "Fencibles" seeing that it was impossible to continue as a separate Battalion, decided to ask for an assignment to the 6th Infantry. It was after this request that Colonel Coryell tendered him the position of regimental Adjutant with the rank of Captain. This he accepted on November 22d, 1899.

After the assignment of the Fencibles, two field officers were to be chosen by the line, namely: Lieutenant Colonel and Junior Major. He was elected to the Junior Majority May 15th.

In business, Major Lumb is Secretary and General Manager of two large glass concerns, Treasurer of syndicate centrolling numerous electric companies, Treasurer of Quarry and Construction Co., and interested in different enterprises in Europe and Canada. He has two brothers who are in the United States service; one in the Philippines and one in China. Both have been mentioned for conspicuous bravery in the field.

Major Lumb comes from a military family and bids fair to become one of the promising officers in the Guard.

Dance of the Naval Militia.

Notwithstanding that sailors are supposed to have at least one girl in every port, and to devote a great deal of time and attention to the fair sex generally, it was not until May 15th last that the Pennsylvania Naval Militia invited all their fair admirers in their home port of Philadelphia to visit them on board the U. S. S. St. Louis and take part in a dance.

The affair was gotten up by a committee of Division "B," in which Quartermaster Barr and Seaman Matlack were the active spirits, and was a great success.

The dancing took place on the spar-deck, which had been cleared of everything and waxed, and with the main hatch closed with hatch gratings, made a good sized and excellent dancing floor. The whole ship had been tastefully "dressed" with innumerable code flags and national colors and presented a very gay appearance. All the state-rooms and cabins too were thrown open and disclosed to the admiring and wondering gaze of the unsophisticated onlookers, anchors, boat hooks, grapnels and oil skins galore, while pervading all below decks was the appropriate perfume of tarred rope. Up in the Captain's cabins were sextants, charts, and patent logs and a pelorous instrument, and all sorts of queer looking things. Every girl had to learn how to "shoot the sun" (with an electric light for the sun, and any old thing for an "artificial horizon").

The handsome officer with the seven medals took the fortunate ones in turn to sit in a gun port and hear how once upon a time that very gun port has threatened death and destruction to the two Austrian War Ships that wanted to prompt the return of Martin Koska to his adopted land.

Each blue jacket had to explain how the one-pounders worked and what the difference was between the new Navy field piece and the old brass Howitzers that looked so much prettier, and whether the Colt automatic wasn't only a pea shooter after all. Each girl thought it was a shame that she couldn't be taken for a row in one of the cutters, and that the Navy Regulations wouldn't permit of her going around to New York with the Reserves on the Shearwater the next time that her gallant admirer should help to take that gallant vessel around to see the yacht races.

And all the while the "dreamy waltz" and the "sprightly two-step" kept the dancing floor filled; and after one o'clock had come around and every one went home to sleep, each girl dreamt of the terrors of the deep and of Delaware Bay, sea serpents and the merman, and next day each said it was the very nicest dance that she had been to this year.

One of the pleasantest features of the evening was the presence of a number of members of the local infantry in their dress uniforms, the scarlet coats of the Fencible representatives seeming particularly gay in comparison with Navy blue, but in order that the nautical character of things should not be lost, Seaman Montgomery, during an intermission, danced a sailor's hornpipe that brought forth so much applause that it had to be repeated twice.

NOTES.

With the coming encampment which is to be held at Mt. Gretna, Pennsylvania, sets pace for the most complete and greatest organization of citizen soldiery in America. After the encampment, the next great event will be the Presidential inaugural ceremonies. The question is asked in the event of the Division being mobilized on this occasion in the city of Washington, what the reviewing officers will say when our thirty-eight solid Battalions swing up the "Avenue."

The rearrangement of the artillery arm of the State has been practically settled upon. Battery "A," in all probability, will have eight Colt automatic guns. Battery "C" will have a complement of six modern Gatling guns with upright feed, as shown in illustration on page 11. Battery "B's" complement will consist of four 3-2 inch breech loaders. In addition to the Colts and Gatlings, Batteries "A" and "C" will retain one of the 3-2 inch guns. Thus our artillery armament will be one of the finest in the country. The men of Captain Warburton's Battery are well pleased with the prospect of receiving a Colt gun.

The Navy Department has fixed June 22 to June 29 as the date for this year's regular practice cruise for the Pennsylvania Naval Militia, on the U. S. S. Prairie. The members of the Battalion are looking forward to the cruise with a good deal of pleasant anticipation, especially as they have just heard that Commander Swift, of the Regular Service, will be in command, and a number of the men remember how kind he was a few years ago when, as Executive Officer of the "Indiana," he gave them some unusual opportunities for exploring the ship and learning the use and operation of any piece of mechanism that happened to particularly interest any of them.

Summer Resorts on the P. & R.

The Philadelphia & Reading Passenger Department have compiled, for the season of 1900, a list of the boarding houses and summer hotels on their line near Philadelphia.

This book also gives full information as to excursion and commutation tickets; something in regard to the cycling roads, and is illustrated with views of several of the historical and picturesque points, so many of which are reached by this line.

The book will be sent by mail to any address on receipt of a two-cent stamp by Edson J. Weeks, General Passenger Agent, Philadelphia.

NOTICE to our Patrons:—For three months during the Spanish-American War, the Journal was suspended, and we have gradually caught up until we are but one number short. The name of the month may be misleading to some patrons, but number 4 is practically the June issue. We are making every effort to publish numbers 5 and 6 before the coming encampment, which will bring the Journal to date.

THE outlook for the Pittsburg Armory is growing very bright. Major Dwight Tredway has simply proved a wonder in getting in the cash for the fund. Major Tredway thinks the amount required will be raised by July 1st.

THE inspections so far throughout the State have shown a marked improvement over the fall inspections. This is especially noticeable in the 1st Brigade, where it was necessary to reinspect several of the companies.

WITH the practical disbandment of the 15th Regiment and the assignment of the remaining five companies of this command to the 16th, gives Colonel Willis Hulings the "flower" of the western end of the State, and when their three battalions swing into camp this summer, you will see a "stunner."

IN several regiments of the 2d Brigade and one in the 1st, the Captains are bitterly complaining of their inability to punish men who absent themselves from drills and openly defy their authority. If the several Captains of these commands would insist officially on the holding of a summary court-martial, this evil might be speedily remedied. For instance, in the 13th Infantry, Lieut.-Col. Stillwell made short work of the matter by having several derelicts convicted. They were sentenced to pay a fine of $10 or undergo imprisonment in the Lackawanna County Jail for a period of three days. This is the proper method of procedure, and we cannot commend the action of Colonel Stillwell too highly.

Field officers throughout the State should undoubtedly take up this course and encourage the company commanders, otherwise, enlistments will become farcical.

IT has been suggested that retired officers be allowed to qualify as marksmen every season in order to keep up their interest in rifle practice, which in the event of an emergency, would prove beneficial to the service. The State of New Jersey permits its retired officers to indulge in this practice, and we think it but reasonable to give our officers the same privilege. By this means it would also keep them identified with the active organization, whereas at the present time, when an officer is placed on the retired list he is practically lost sight of unless perchance he appears in uniform on some State occasion.

THE indiscriminate wearing of uniforms by semi-military organizations almost identical with those worn by the officers and men of the Guard, is again causing much agitation throughout the State. Recently there were several public demonstrations held when it was quite common to see what was generally supposed officers of the State affiliating and skylarking on the public thoroughfares with apparently enlisted men. As a matter of curiosity, inquiry was made, and it was learned that the jubilant parties were simply members of a fraternal society. The uniform was there, however, and the gentlemen in commission on occasions of this kind receive no more credit or recognition from the general public than the individuals referred to. In one case particularly, a party of line officers hailing from the western part of the State, passed two gentlemen who wore the relative uniform of Major and Colonel. The officers were about saluting when they recognized a rather peculiar collar device on the two supposed "superior officers" which did not strike them as being regulation, and they immediately concluded not to render official recognition. Thus the real officers were spared humiliation.

This is only one instance of nearly an every day occurrence, and something should be done by the Legislature to stop this practice. It is an injustice to the officers and men who are serving the Guard faithfully, and it is surely proving prejudicial to the interests of the service.

THE greatest military event in the history of Easton was the unveiling of the soldier's and sailor's monument on Friday, May 11th, when the entire 13th Regiment was paraded in that city. This was accomplished largely through the personal efforts of Col. Louis A. Watres, and the elegant reception tendered the visiting troops was only possible through the management of Major B. Rush Field, who was Chairman of the committee. The entire demonstration was a credit to the city. The Governor's and Lieut. Governor's Staffs were largely represented, and the orations delivered on the occasion were the finest ever heard in this section of the State.

Company "I," of the 13th, commanded by Captain Drake, which is the only company in Easton, paraded a solid twenty-eight front. While but a junior company in the service, it has proven itself a wonder, standing at the head of the division for general average. They now propose erecting an Armory similar to those occupied by the separate companies in New York State. A substantial fund for this purpose has already been secured. The personnel of the rank and file of this organization cannot be excelled.

Lieut. Newberry, formerly 2d Lieutenant of Company "I," 13th Infantry, has been appointed Battalion Adjutant. Major Field is to be congratulated upon securing so able and popular an officer.

THE invitation extended to the 1st Brigade to take part in the Field Day exercises at Valley Forge on Saturday, June 16th, under the auspices of the Daughters of the Revolution, proved a lamentable failure. The committee in charge evidently had but a meagre idea as to what constituted a regiment, for it is stated that they were $100 short in furnishing transportation for one command. As a regimental commander of the 1st Brigade remarked, the next time an invitation of this nature is extended, the authorities should request to be allowed to see the "color of their money," and then have a military committee make all necessary arrangements.

As an instance of the utter lack of knowledge in matters of ceremony, the Governor and Mrs. Stone were allowed to arrive at Valley Forge station without being received by any of the committee in charge.

Capsain Francis M. Bean, of Battery "C," who is a resident of the Forge and happened to be at the station when the train arrived, recognized his Commander-in-Chief and generously offered to secure a conveyance for the Governor's party and escort them to headquarters, but this Governor Stone courteously declined, expressing a preference to walk over the "holy ground" made sacred by the continental army.

A portion of the Governor's staff consisting of Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart, Quartermaster General Thomas Potter, Jr., Inspector General Frank G. Sweeney, Chief of Ordnance Sheldon Potter and Naval Attache Captain John S. Muckle, arrived about thirty minutes after the Governor. They were met at the station by Mr. Beitler, Private Secretary of Govenor Stone.

While all of the prominent officials and distinguished guests were assembling on the balcony of the famous Washington Inn, a rag-time serenade was given by an Italian organ-grinder, accompanied by his inseparable friend, "DaMonk." This was the only music at the "Field Day" ceremonies.

The exercises at the grand stand were quite interesting. Governor Stone presiding, called on several prominent speakers, including Senator Watson of Indiana, Congressman Wanger of Pennsylvania, and General Basil Judge of Confederate fame. Mr. Mathews, a resident of Valley Forge, made the substantial speech of the occasion, pledging a subscription of $1,000 towards the purchase of the ground. The benediction was delivered by Adjutant General Stewart, after which the assemblage dispersed.

On the way into the city, one of the committee stated that next year not only the 1st Brigade would be in attendance, but that arrangements had already been made to have the Ancient Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, Mass., Squadron "A," of New York City, and the Washington Light Infantry Corps of the District of Columbia present. "Such a gathering!"

Personal Mention

This seems to be a season of prize offering. Never before in the history of the Guard has the incentive been so great for rifle practice as the present season. At least ten trophies and medals have been offered the several Brigades by public spirited gentlemen, and we trust the interest displayed by the donors will be thoroughly appreciated and the results surpass all former records in this department.

Another generous offer comes from Colonel Thomas Potter, Jr., Quartermaster General of the State, who will give a substantial prize to the regimental Quartermaster having the best laid out and neatest camp during the week of August 4th to 11th, inclusive, at Mt. Gretna.

The boys of the 2d Brigade are jubilant over the order replacing General Wiley in command of the Brigade. He is the ideal soldier of the western section of the State and the men swear by him.

The 29th Commencement of Cheltenham Military Academy took place on Wednesday, June 13th. The exercises consisted of declamation contests in gymnasium, class and military exercises.

During the coming encampment a regimental summary court will be held each morning by the several Lieutenant Colonels, at which time, such offenders will be dealt with according to the breach committed. In all such cases, fines will be imposed and these deducted from the individuals' camp pay.

This is one of the best moves the authorities have ever taken, and it should result in much good, especially as regards attendance on drills.

Lieut. Gustav Schlacter, 2d Lieutenant in the 43d U. S. Volunteer Infantry, and formerly 2d Lieutenant of Company "B" of the 3d Infantry, National Guard of Pennsylvania, was severely wounded in the Phillippine Islands last week.

There is a general inquiry as to the pistol practice decorations for 1898 and 1899.

Company "D," of the 1st Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, held their annual reunion at the Bourse on Saturday evening, May 12th. The affair was very successful and was attended by a majority of the members of the Volunteers, several coming from a great distance. After a select musical entertainment, speeches were made by Captain Artemus Deane, Captain Thomas B. Thomas, Captain John Osborn, and Lieutenants McDowell, Sinnickson, Shoemaker and Whelen. A permanent organization was organized, the object being to keep alive the memories of the service of the Company in the Spanish-American War.

Company "D," of the 1st Infantry, N. G. P., have had another loss in the person of 2d Lieutenant Thomas Whelen. This leaves Captain Osborn without Lieutenants, Lieutenant Richard M. Shoemaker, Jr., resigned his commission several weeks ago.

Company "B," of the 6th Infantry (Wheatly Cadets), were inspected on Saturday evening, May 11th, and it is said that the inspection was satisfactory. This is one of the Companies of the 1st Brigade that was reinspected after being recommended for disbandment by Major Worman. Captain Walters, who commands the Company, is the senior Infantry line officer in the State, and has been in continuous service since 1875.

Six competitive shoots have been arranged in the 3d Infantry, open to a team of six men from each Company. Commissioned officers will also be permitted to shoot on these teams and the prizes will consist of three medals: gold, silver and bronze. In addition to this shoot, a competitive pistol match has been arranged, taking in all the officers of the command.

CAPTAIN J. CLAYTON ERB

Captain J. Clayton Erb, the newly appointed Quartermaster of the 3d Infantry, was formerly the 1st Lieutenant of Company "F" and served as acting Commissary in the 3d Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He is a very popular and efficient officer, and the Q. M. department of the 3d is bound to be an ideal one under his charge. Captain Erb was one of the committee largely responsible for the successful entertainment accorded Colonel Barnett's command, "Our Fighting 10th," while enroute to New York City incidental to the Dewey celebration. Captain Erb is out for one of the prizes offered by Quartermaster General Thomas Potter, Jr., for the best equipped regimental camp at Mt. Gretna this summer.

CAPTAIN J. CLAYTON ERB

Of the four troops in the State, it is said that the 1st Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, is the only cavalry organization in which fencing is part of their regular drill.

Several of the expert shots of the Division claim that the smokeless powder cartridges are unsatisfactory, in as much that it requires them to aim in the third ring in order to make "Bulls." It is also claimed that thirty-five yards below normal will be required in contests.

Within the next ten days, the new silhouette target will be used at the 1st Regiment rifle range. The form of a man will be outlined on the steel plates, and it is suggested in order to make centres at 200 yards, the aim should be directed on the right flank of the figure about twenty-two inches above the base line.

The U. S. S. Shearwater, one of the "Naval Reserves'" practice vessels, has just been returned to them from the League Island Navy Yard, where she has been in dry dock and her hull scraped and painted.

The reserves expect to recommence at once their Saturday to Monday trips down the bay that were such a feature of their work last year, and are hoping that this year the State will authorize their organizing an Engineer Corps so that the men who now volunteer for this work will be officially recognized and not be compelled to also perform all the work of the other drills as well.

The 1st Battalion of the 6th Infantry, commanded by Major Washabaugh, notwithstanding the inclement weather, made a remarkably fine showing at the Media celebration, held on Saturday, May 19th.

The regimental band of the Fifth Regiment has been fully organized and equipped. It is located at Clearfield and is under the leadership of Chief Musician Frank D. Leipold.

Lieut. Geo. L. Jackson, 47th Volunteers, U. S. A., who was reported by Gen. MacArthur yesterday as having died in Manilla of Bright's disease, was at one time a member of the Fifth Regiment, N. G. P. He was First Lieutenant of Company "B," 5th Regiment, of Bellefonte, and served with the regiment during the Spanish-American War.

The Hospital Corps for the 5th Regiment is about ready for mustering into the service of the State. It will be located in Altoona, and all the members are druggists, druggists' assistants, or students.

At a recent meeting of the officers of the 10th Infantry, it was decided to arrange for an "Immense Tea Party" to be tendered Colonel Ralston's 3d Regiment at the coming encampment. This is intended as a return compliment for the hospitable reception accorded the 10th when stopping at Philadelphia as guests of the 3d while enroute to the Dewey celebration in New York City last September.

At the suggestion of several prominent officials, "Our State Army and Navy" some time ago offered a trophy to the 1st Brigade to take the place of the Morrell trophy which was finally won last season. The same conditions were to prevail. It has been learned recently that Major D. S. B. Chew has purchased and offered a very handsome trophy, and Colonel Elverson and Mr. Thomas Dolan are also likely to offer prizes for the Brigade shoot. This being the case, the Journal respectfully withdraws in favor of Major Chew.
